

accord - an agreement adequate - good enough, mediocre appease - to make someone feel less dissatisfied attest - to vouch for the truth of a statement beneficial - helpful, opposite of detrimental collaborate - to work together comply (with) - to obey or follow a command controversial - causing a great deal of disagreement convey - to communicate an idea detrimental - hurtful, opposite of beneficial devise - to come up with a plan dissuade - to convince someone not to do something or think something ethical - the right, moral thing to do foremost - the most important, the most prominent habituate - to become used to something ill-advised - poorly thought out, unwise impediment - something that stands in your way, an obstacle impunity - a state of immunity for punishment incentive - a reward for doing something indiscriminate - not selective mediate - to help bring two sides into agreement mutual - involving both sides negligible - of very little value, almost worthless nullify - to completely cancel perspective - viewpoint, way of seeing things pertinent - on topic prodigious - used to describe a great amount rational - logical repercussion - a consequence for a bad decision rue - to regret